MARK THE DIFFERENCE.

[From the Johet (Hi.) Signal.] Four years ago Senator Douglas returned to Chicago after his gallant triumph over the opposition in the United States Senate in securing the passage of the Kansas-Nebraska bill and the repeal of the unconstitutional compromise, and he was insulted and made the victim of every conceivable indignity. The flags were raised at half-mast, the belis were tolled, as marks of public displeasure at his return; and when he attempted to vindicate his course he was driven from the stand by bisses and yells and curses, and was compelled to fice from the infuriated rabble.

cate his course he was driven from the stand by hisses and yells and curses, and was compelled to fice from the infuriated rabble.

The first place that Senator Douglas visited after being driven out of Chicago four years ago was the democratic city of Joliet. the only city in the northern part of the State of Hlinois that never wavered in support of democratic principles. Most of our readers remember the welcome with which he was received. His presence among us was greeted with the deafening shouts of admiring thousands. It was here he made his opening speech; and it was here he found a democracy enthusiastically in favor of the measures for the support of which he received the execrations of the people of Chicago.

A few days since Senator Douglas returned to Chicago again, after having passed another crisis in Washington. His triumphant reception is well known to our readers. The same people who had insulted him four years ago were jubilant over the event of his return; and turned out by thousands to give him a glorious reception. They were so carried away with enthusiastic admiration that they would have knosed the horses from the carriage in which the distinguished senator made his entry into the city and hauled it themselves, had not Mr. Douglas, in good taste, positively told them he would get out of the carriage if they did so.

This time, as before, the next place Mr. Douglas visited, after his arrival at Chicago, was Joliet, on his way south to Bloomington and Sprinfield. When the cars arrived at the depot, though several hundred had assembled to see him, he was received with respectful silence. There was no shout like that which his presence spontaneously called forth four years ago, though many of the ame men were present. It is true, an effort was made to get up a cheer upon his departure, but it proved a misgrable failure.

We would ask our readers to mark the difference in the receptions of Senator Douglas. Certainly the contrast is striking. We opine that the fact that Mr. Douglas

We would ask our readers to mark the difference in the receptions of Senator Douglas. Certainly the contrast is striking. We opine that the fact that Mr. Douglas returns this time, after having opposed the democratic national administration and the democratic party in a measure of policy, has much to do in the change of the feelings of the people of Chicago towards him. We know it is the cause of the coolness exhibited by the democracy of Joliet.

But, as we have said all along, the democrats of Joliet do not want to make the support or opposition to Lecompton a text of democracy. Nor will they make war on Senator Douglas or any democrat for his opinions on that question. If Mr. Douglas will do justice to the venerable statesman that now fills the Presidential chair, which we are inclined to think he will do, the democracy of Joliet will give him such a reception and such a vote f Joliet will give him such a reception and such as will terrify the abolition traitors.

The Troy Times mays the denomement of a love as fair took place at Union Hall, Saratoga Springs, last Thursday week. A young lawyer from New York met. there a dashling young last from the same city, to whom he had been paying halt from the same city, to whom he had been paying halt from the same city, to whom he had been paying halt from the parlor, and then and there popped the question. Overcome by his warmth, or the circumstances in which she unexpectedly found there popped the question. Overcome by his warmth, or the circumstances in which she unexpectedly found herself placed, the young lady consented, and together they rushed out, sprang into a carriage, and were driven to the house of a clernyman, by whom their fates were speedily united. There was a great deal of storming on the part of the old people when they found out what had been done, but they concluded to submit, after they had made up their minds that they could do no better.

A correspondent in Kingston, Jamaica, writing on 26th of June, states that the news of the passage of the resolutions of Congress, with reference to the British naval outrages, and of the prompt despatch of additional United States vessels to the Gulf of Mexico, produced a high state of excitement amongst the people and officials in that place. When Commodore Kellett was ordered by Admiral Stewart to assume the command of the British flect off Florida the feeling was very intense. It was still aggravated by a report to the effect that the guntoota Styx had been captured by the Wabash. Additional information was waited for so impatiently as to demonstrate the great importance which the English colonists attach to the state of our international relations with the mother country.

The Memphis papers report that the failure of the Citizens' Bank is a bad one, and that little will be realized from its assets. As yet, no examination has been made into its affairs, and it is impossible to know its condition. Without there has been absolute swindling, the note-holders may realize something. The papers relate individual instances of distress caused by the failure of this bank. Great confidence was reposed in it, as its owners were wealthy and bore a high character. MUSINGS A LA METROPOLITAN. MUNINGS A LA METROPOLITAN.

We are not a "Middle-Aged Man," and yet we are given to musing upon the things that take place in this busy, changing world of ours. Is there one of you who has not suffered from disappointment? Have you not for several weeks past looked in vain for the scintillations of the "Middle-Aged Man?" We know you have, and it would afford us pleasure to be able to tell you of his present occupation and wheresbouts. It is usual when a gentleman disappears to make diligent inquiry for him, and to describe his appearance when has seen. We shall do nothing of the kind, as you have doubtless and him some time or other, and been as well pleased We shall do nothing of the kind, as you have doubtless met him some time or other, and been as well pleased with his wit and repurtee as you have been with his musings. Wherever he may be, we know he enjoys life in the fullest, best sense of the word, especially if he has forsaken his attic and thermometer and taken to roaming in search of cool sea-breezes and invigorated health. We suspect the latter to be the truth, for he certainly stood greatly in need of both.

If you have read the New York papers (and we know

If you have read the New York papers (and we know you have) for the last week or so, doubtless you have seen how a gallant Zouave gained the affections of a lady fair, the approval of a mother proud, and finally escaped an entraged, threatening father and the minious of the law, which is not so surprising in the midst of the perfection of police arrangements that now exist. What a lesson for despairing lovers and intriguing mamas! The denouement of this pleasant little romance will bring foreign counts, daring Zouaves, bushy whiskers and bewitching mustachios far, far below par in the estimation of the eager worshippers of these timocent sorts of humbug. Our barbers will remain barbers, and, instead of cultivating their own hair, will continue to revivify and recolor that of their customers. Hotel-waiters will be hotel-waiters, and case to pine for enjoyments which an issumed title, the company of silly ladies, and Saratoga water only give.

We must make an exception, however, in favor of saucy coachmen, especially if they drive susceptible young ladies with wealthy papes, since there can be no tangible objection to their marrying except the opposition of a misguided father, which really amounts to nothing in the eyes of the law! How strange that that which we the eyes of the law! How strange that that which we call upon for protection should sanction such cruety as the desertion of father and mothel for the arms of an untamed Jehu! And yet is it not stranger still that a refined heiress should so far forget what is due to the honor of her family! But it all comes of boarding schools and cheap novels. What rejoicing there is among the honest, hard-working sovereigns of this free land that a millenium is dawning! Is not there a certainty of preferment and appreciation in store for them from the fair sex, who have found out the utter worthlessness of the titles that are sported by designing bipeds, destitute alike of brains and cash! The Boston press will never more lament the decrease in the number of marriages, but go lament the decrease in the number of marriages, but go into cestusies over the frequency of wedding ceremonies, and the happiness of the brides and the content of the bridegrooms. Heigh ho! after all, what a blessing the dashing Frenchman will be to his fellow mortals!

THE STRUBEN MONUMENT FESTIVAL.—There seems to be little room for doubt but that the celebration at Arlington Spring to-morrow will be an event long to be re-membered by our citizens. A reference to our adver-tising columns will show the reader that a programme of performances has been determined upon that affords instruction as well as entertainment to those who may be present. Addresses will be made, in English as well as in German; singing and dancing will diversify the enter-tainment, and the Turngemeinde and Turnevein will turn somersets and give other gymnastic performances. Tickets may be obtained at all the principal American and German hotels and restaurants, and boats will be in waiting at Georgetown on the arrival of the procession to convey the party to Arlington Spring. Though three boats will ply during the whole day between Georgetows and Arlington, the visitors of the festival are requested by the committee of arrangement to start as early as executive, in order the of arrangements to start as early as possible, in order to avoid the landing becoming too crowded at the time of the arrival of the procession.
